I forgot to say that I use mv this is a rather large question to ask. I use the MZ version and am quite satisfied that I can "simulate" a complex menu without actually knowing JS. You should download the attached file by clicking the link. Thank you. You are welcome to make reference. @GMOCEAN Does this plugin work in smartphones? Personally I would build the plugin for this. Hello here! I'm looking for how to make a HUD for my mobile game. But I don't think the MV version has those features. Alternatively it is possible to use the images to be viewed through common events and trigger settings. Since they are all just the images controlled by a plugin, just as if you were able to do with events and switches/variables. You should create a plugin that creates and positions windows with different settings in it. Thanks this should do what you want: HUD MAKER This thread has been moved for the requested plug-ins. Thank you in advance. Download the resource and place it in your IMG / Pictures folder. This is a number between 0 and 255. You are right in this but my JS does not reach that level even so if you know some plugins for this I would appreciate it that I am not aware of one at the moment. My hud plugin doesn't work. But you have some videos to see if you really do what you want. I explained my doubt. More work but much more flexible. I'm developing my PC game in which use Hud Maker and it's perfect, but at the same time I'm collecting resources for a smartphone game and tested HUD Maker in it, and the test in a browser, but the HUD created with This plugin has not shown. Ok, I will try to write to you in the future if you won't find a way to do it. I see. Then I'm not aware of a solution for you. If not, I'm sure to find the time to help you build a plugin that fits your needs. This plugin allows developers to create their own map-based HUD through a GUI window inside the game!
