Founded in 1982 and headquartered in Copenhagen, Denmark, Pandora employs more than 27,300 people around which 13,200 are found in Thailand, where the company manufactures its jewelry. Pandora is listed publicly in the Nasdaq Copenhagen Stock Exchange in Denmark. In 2017, Pandora's total revenues were DKK 22.8 billion (approximately 3,100 million euros). For more information, visit www.pandoragroup.com. The pandora story Sales in more than 70 countries. 1982-1999: The first years all began almost 30 years ago. In 1982, in 1982, a day's shop would become Pandora, was established in a modest environment in Copenhagen, Denmark, by Goldsmith DanÅ © s by Enevoldsen and the wife of Him Winnie. From the beginning, they often traveled to Thailand in search of jewelry for importation. As the demand for its products increased, its approach gradually moved to wholesale customers in Denmark. In 1987, after several successful years as wholesalers, retail activities were suspended and the company moved to the most large facilities. Meanwhile, the first internal designer joined the and Pandora began to concentrate on creating their own unique jewels. In 1989, the company decided to start manufacturing itsin Thailand. 2000-2009: Construction of an international presence In 2000, the charming Pandora bracelet concept was first launched on the Danish market. Consumers accepted the concept, and in the following years, driven by growing and encouraging demand, the company began to expand internationally, entering new markets such as the United States in 2003 and Germany and Australia in 2004. During the following years, Pandora quickly expanded its market presence from a Scandinavian platform to an international marketing and sales platform driven mainly by third-party distributors and strong production capabilities in Thailand. In order to increase its production capacity, Pandora opened in Thailand in 2005 a large-scale manufacturing plant, six floors of total ownership, which is still central to current production and infrastructure. In August 2008, a second manufacturing plant was inaugurated in the same area, which in 2010 was followed by the opening of the third and fourth Pandora installations in the same area, further strengthening our unique production configuration. Today Pandora operates and manages a vertically integrated business model from internal design and manufacturing to global marketing and direct distribution in most markets. The products are sold in more than 70 countries of six continents through more than 10,300 points of sale, including about 900 concept stores. Pandora's mission, then and today, is to offer women around the world a universe of high quality jewelry products, hand-finished, modern and genuine at affordable prices, which inspires women to express their individuality.
