Follow us on PINTERESTUse this simple but powerful free Google Sheets Christmas gift list template that Ive created to keep track of the gifts you need to buy and your gift budget. Using a Google Sheets spreadsheet to plan and keep track of your Christmas gift shopping will save you time and money. Plus, it makes shopping for Christmas gifts so much easier. And I should know because I use it every year to organise my gift shopping. Just like everything in life, being organised and having a plan is the best way of making sure you do something efficiently. None of us want to spend more time than we need on Christmas shopping, and it is easy to go over budget. So it really does pay to keep track of spending, both by setting a budget up front and then tracking the actual amount you spend on each gift. This Google Sheets template is a reliable way of planning gifts for everyone, sticking to a budget and keeping track of shipping dates and links back to the sites or apps that you bought through. The Tracker I really like using Google Sheets for all my organising and budget tracking. They are super simple to use, and theyre also really easy to use on the go with the Google Sheets app. The Google sheet planner I have created allows you to set an overall budget for your Christmas gift shopping. You can then use the planner to set individual budgets for each gift you plan to buy. You can also note what you plan to buy and the store you plan to buy it from. Once youve bought a gift, you can add in what it actually costs you to buy, and the planner will then show you how much money you have left from both the individual budget and the overall gift budget you set. This way, you can decide as you go along whether you want to increase someone elses budget, buy an extra gift for someone or simply make a saving on your overall budget. Related: The Ultimate Christmas to-do list (free printable) The balance will keep you on track, and if you end up making savings on one gift, you know you have that money to spend on another gift or to simply bank as a saving. Simply click the image of the Google Sheet or link below it to download it. You will be prompted to make a copy of the google sheet, so go ahead and make the copy (see instructional image below) Click to download: Free Christmas Gift Planner Google Sheet How to copy the document: Click on the blue Make A Copy button. The document will be recreated in your Google Drive. You can rename it to whatever you want to call it. How to copy Google Sheet Related: The Five Gift Rule and how it works Book time into your calendar to do your gift shopping. I always tend to go for the end of November, ideally at some point in the week leading up to and including Black Friday. That way, I know two things:All my gift shopping is done and dusted in plenty of time for Christmas. Ive given myself the best chance to snap up bargains and get the best deals. You should have a rough idea from the Christmas gift shopping planner what the ratio is of online shops to shops youll need to visit. So plan the amount of time you think youll need accordingly. I usually allow a good half-day for online shopping and a day for visiting the shops. My big piece of advice is to do the online shopping before you head to the shops. Its far easier to suss out the bargains online. Plus, online shopping offers the benefit of having everything delivered versus carrying heavy bags around a shopping mall. Start with the gifts where you know exactly what you want to buy. For example, a particular lipstick from a beauty brand or a particular kids toy. I tend to follow this process for each gift:Do a quick Google search to see if you can spot any special offers. Establish which online stores stock the product and at which prices Compare shipping costs Visit a couple of voucher code sites to see if there are any special Christmas promo codes. I tend to always visit one I know I can trust, which is Vouchercodes.co.uk. Ive also got the Vouchercodes App. Update the shop column with the online store youre planning to buy from and note any voucher codes. Dont buy until you have noted everything youre going to buy from a particular store to maximise on free or reduced shipping. When you know the kind of thing you want to buy but dont yet know the exact gift, your first mission needs to be for inspiration. Heres what I tend to do to nail down a gift idea:A quick trip to Pinterest to search for gift inspiration create a gift board; you can make it a secret board to keep prying eyes away. Google search phrases gift ideas for mums, wooden toy gifts for 2-year-olds I also tend to pin ideas to my Pinterest board. Visit favourite blogs and magazine sites for gift ideas again. I usually pin ideas to my secret Pinterest board. Make a note of the gift ideas on the planner, along with where to buy them. Revisit the steps for buying an exact gift above to double-check for the best price / overall cost, including shipping Once you have your plan complete for all your online shopping, get buying. Group gifts by online store to maximise on free or discounted shipping. Finally, make sure youve updated the actual cost column and check the total amount in the balance column. Then, youll have a clear idea of whether youre overspent, unspent or are on target. PIN TO SAVE: Google Sheets Christmas list templateHello, Im Luci, founder of Mums Make Lists. The 7 Best Free Budget Templates for Google SheetsNot sure how to create a spreadsheet for your budgeting goals? Dont worry! Ive compiled some of the best templates anywhere. Each free Google Sheets budget template is user-friendly and easy to access. All you have to do is download a copy, fill out the necessary details, and youre done!! Zero-Based Budgeting Template for Google SheetsAccess TemplateOne popular budgeting technique is the idea of zero-based. Its a very popular way to organize personal finances, and the concept is simple. With a zero-based budget, you allocate all your net income into planned expenses until their difference becomes zero. This is a great way to ensure your hard-earned funds are spent wisely. More importantly, a zero-based budget template helps plan for savings goals.Note that you can also use it for business transactions. Lets say you have a startup capital of $20,000 for your soap business. Youd list all crucial operational expenses (like material acquisition, logistics, and marketing). Youll continue until the budget is exhausted.Our zero-based budgeting template is easy to use, displaying the total income youve generated and comparing it against the total allocated funds. Youll also see the remaining balance that youll need to divide further. Best of all, you can use it for business and individual budgeting!2. Simple Business Budgeting Template for Google SheetsAccess TemplateOne of the most important aspects of any business is how its funds flow (i.e., money generated, spent, gained). If youre in the early years of your enterprise, organizing your income and expenses in a simple budget sheet will provide clearer insight into budget strategy. Its an essential part of any business plan, and a balanced budget also helps small-business owners plan for the future.To use this budget template, divide your operating income and expenses into separate categories, and enter each into the Income rows. You can even connect this to another sheet, so it automatically pulls data. Of course, static figures would turn this into a printable budget spreadsheet Google Sheets template instead. Whether you use it online or offline, its a good fit for small businesses with multiple streams of income.Start by listing the money received from various income sources. This might include your companys profits and gifts received from others. Next, do the same for your expenses. The template will automatically tally your numbers. Since this simple Google Sheets budget template is customizable, feel free to include the company name and year for a more official-looking report. 3. Google Spreadsheet Budget Template for StudentsAccess TemplateLearning how to budget your finances as a student can go a long way to saving money for your future. It can also help you pay back student loans more quickly. And, if youre familiar with the power of compounding interest, youll understand why thats such an appealing idea. Being responsible for your finances can be a bit overwhelming initially, but you should know that budgeting doesnt have to be complicated. In our student-friendly Google Sheets budget template, start by listing your total income. That might include part-time work, scholarship grants, internship stipends, or even an allowance from especially generous parents.Next, include your regular expenses to create a more comprehensive budget planner. Our free budget spreadsheet features four phases (from semester 1 to 4), categorizing the expenses you typically require as a student. That means youll have somewhere to include tuition payments, anticipated book costs, and any other planned educational expenses.4. Simple Household Budgeting TemplateAccess TemplateWhile most of the best budget templates above work for businesses, we wanted to make sure we included a top option for household finances, too. Thats because accurate budget tracking is a must for any household. The template also includes a summary that consolidates data from each monthly sheet, adding a holistic view of your yearly financial progress at the bottom. Use this template as a personal, family, or business spreadsheet!Related: Top 10 Google Sheets Calendar TemplatesHow to Create a Custom Budget SpreadsheetThe following annual template is comprised of monthly earnings, expenses (e.g., rent, utilities, vehicle payments), budget, and savings from January to December.Calculating Monthly Budget Fill in all your data in the template sheet. Calculate the total earnings using the =SUM function Drag the function forward to all other cells. Calculate the actual spent value using the =SUM function Drag the function forward to all other cells. Use the =MINUS function to calculate the difference between your budget and the actual spent value. Drag the function forward to all other cells.Conditional Formatting line 17 (in the above screenshot), youll notice that surplus and deficit automatically change color. Deficits turn red and surpluses turn green, thanks to conditional formatting in Google Sheets. To add this feature to your own Google Sheets budget, select the cells and choose Format > Conditional Formatting. When entering the conditions:As a first condition, choose to color the cell red if the value is less than one. As a second condition, choose to color cells green if they have a value of one or higher.Calculating Annual Budget Calculate the total earned using the =SUM function.
