Example #1: Find MVC death data related to work by industry using the first highlighted table, alternate icon of table A-2pdf. Table A-2. à Body shop à Body shop à Body shop à Body shop à Body shop Here's what you need to know: To find out how many workers in each industry died in a motor vehicle accident, you want to look at the following columns: Road accidents involving motorized land vehicles BLS defines these as "injuries to vehicle occupants that occur on that portion of the highway, road, or road normally used for travel, as well as shoulder and surrounding areas, abutments bridges, trees lining the road, etc" Non-road accidents involving land-based motor vehicles This group includes only those instances that occur completely off a public road, such as in a field, factory, or parking lot.à Pedestrian Vehicle Accidents: BLS defines these as à forwarders and other non-vehicle vehicles that are affected by vehicles or other mobile equipment in normal operation, regardless of location.à In the table above, however, the Total column on the left of the three MVC categories is not the sum of the three categories; is the total number of deaths in all modes of transport, not just road transport. Some data users may be interested in the total number of MVC deaths, while others want the detail provided in the three columns. Industry is the main type of employer's activity, while employment is the work of the worker. The data in Table A-2 relate to employees in all types of occupations within the Community.industry. So, within the trucking industry, you can't assume that all the victims were among the truck drivers. In fact, this category includes all those who have worked for companies involved in truck transport, from clerical staff to mechanics to drivers. The identification of industrial categories is important. In the excerpt from the table above, each category entered under Truck Transport is a subset of the main category, but it cannot be assumed that all values of the categories entered add up to the main category. For example, totals for general freight transport and specialised freight transport do not necessarily add up to road transport. This is due to the fact that the BLS tables only report data for industrial categories with a sufficient number of deaths to meet the reporting requirements. In relation to this, you will notice that a number of cells in the table have double dashes, which also indicate that the number of deaths does not meet the BLS reporting requirements. For example, in the taxi service, of the 16 fatal accidents in all modes of transport, you will see 14 fatalities due to road accidents involving motorised land vehicles, but the other two categories of motor vehicles have double dashes. In this case, it cannot be assumed that the other 2 fatalities belong to one of the other categories of motor vehicles, as they may have involved a completely different mode of transport. A good approach is to use data from the highest level category that works for you, "this will give you the most detailed information possible on mortality. Finally, it is important to know that the data in Table A-2 are shown separately for private and public sector workers. The first section of the table shows detailed industry data for private sector workers only. Then, beginning on page 28, the industry categories are repeated for federal, state, and local government workers. Since there are far fewer public employees than private sector workers, the "government" section of any BLS table will typically show less detailed industry data and have more double dashed cells. The need to refer to both the "private-industry" and the "government" sections of the table will depend to a large extent on the sector you are interested in. One area where it would be important to look at both sections is that of highway construction, where the work is carried out by a combination of private companies and government agencies at the state and local levels. In other cases, such as manufacturing, work is done almost exclusively in the private sector. Example #2: Find data on work-related MVC deaths by industry using the first table table A-6pdf external icon. Table A-6. fatal work injuries due to transport accidents and murders by profession, all United States, 2014* employment1 total fatal injuries (number) transport accidents2 murders2 total road accidents involving motorized land vehicles non-road accidentsMotorized vehicles vehicular pedestrian vehicles Total shooting accidents from others PersonÀ ¢ intentional motor vehicle operators 979 739 619 12 87 50 38 Bus drivers 18 13 11 AAAAA Bus Driver, Transit and Intercity 6 5 5 À, À, À, À, bus drivers, school or a special client 12 8 6 À, À, À, a driver / sales workers and truck drivers 684 571 11 880 81 19 13 driver / sales workers 59 39 35 À ¢ À, , ~ "12 7 12 US / automotive tractor 761 596 490 1 1 78 6 5 taxi driver and driver 68 29 26 À ¢ à, ~* 3 31 25 taxi driver and driver 68 29 26 À ¢ à, ~* 3 31 25 Various motor vehicle operators 13 13 11 À ¢ à, ~ "À ¢ à, ~" À ¢ à, ~  The data shown above can be found on p. 19 of this table. Here's what you need to know: Employment is the work of the worker, regardless of the type of employer's main business. For example, in the abstract of the table above, truck drivers may have been used by a self-station company, a retail business or a construction company. The interpretation of the data correctly depends on the understanding of the way in which the occupations are defined. An occupational category for motor vehicle operators that is easy to err. It is the driver / workers. You could make a policy hypothesis that this is a vast category of sales workers whose jobs require them to drive, but actually this occupation is defined much more closely: À ¢ à, ~ À "Drive truck or other vehicle on Routes established or within a established territory and within a established territory and sell or deliver goods, such as food products, including restaurant take-out items or collect or deliver objects such as commercial linen. You can also take orders, collect payment or warehouse goods at the delivery point. Includes newspaper delivery drivers ¢ à, ~ | Carefully looking at employment definitions also helps make other important distinctions, for example among drivers of light and heavy trucks. Get detailed descriptions for each occupation in the Iconexxnall BLS Taulspdf icon. The occupations of the motor vehicle operator discussed in this article are displayed on pages 188-189. Log in more detailed information on all BLS encoding systems uses to classify industry, employment and accident events in the Cfoi DataExternal icon. An interview with John Kao, CEO of Kao & Company, is a great way to start the start of Fastcompany.tv and ScablelZerv. Why? Well, he taught business at Harvard's university for 14 years. It is widely recognized as one of the best experts in the world on innovation (his book innovation nation was appointed by Business Week to be one of the best business books in 2007) who works with tons of companies to help them be more innovative. But this has not started because an interesting person of John. Hell, he played in Frank Zappa's band and also plays a little piano for us. We listen to John's thoughts on innovation and more. The 2012 Nike 100-PLUS fitness wristband has a simple interface and has turned all the activity into à ¢ onNikefuel Pointsâ¢, so that different types of athletes can compete against each other. It looked like it was.Being the beginning of a path digitally focused for Nike-But this summer Nike has turned off the members of his Fuelband team, and not guarantee the future of the device. Finalist. 2012 The Boxy camera was a turning point, allowing users of Rifocus photos after they were taken. The quality of the image was not high enough for professionals, though, and the price of $ 400 tags scared by casual photographers. Lytro has gathered and has recently released Lytro Illum, a $ 1,600 camera, destined for the professional market. The Fisker Karmawinner, 2012 The electric car cemetery is full of beautiful short-term creations, including this innovation from the design winner. Fisker Automotive Holdings presented for bankruptcy last year; China Wanxiang Group has since taken control, and is working to remove the approximately 250 bugs that filled its electric sedan sport, karma. Leap Motion Controllerwinner, 2013 This three-inch dongle transforms any computer into a device similar to Kinect which can understand a user's hand gestures. It is now in a public beta for developers and received an impressive update: the device can read the joints and bones inside a user's hands, like an X-ray, which allows you to react to thin and hyperspecific movements. Finalista, 2013 Edible-Packaging technology (which in 2013 went to the name WikiCell) transforms the sloppy foods into -piccoli pods that can be inserted in our mouth. Stonyfield Frozen Yogurt Pearls are now available at 30 Whole Foods stores. Next: a coffee near the mit with a menu of Wikicocktails, Wikicheese and Wikisoups. The Lucky Iron Fish ProjectFinalist, 2013 This iron fish mold was distributed in Cambodian villages as part of a clinical study to combat anemia. (When added to a cooking plate, it infuses meals with enough iron to avoid deficiencies.) It is now on sale throughout Cambodia and in part of eastern Africa and Canada. In the first half of 2014, 10,000 of the fish were sold à ¢ ~and the NGOs in the Dominican Republic, Ethiopia, Haiti and Vietnam are now considering them too. Good.
