I had the conviction (perhaps wrong) that one of the bluetooth functions was to easily transfer files between two neighboring devices. I could certainly do it with my Android phone and my Linux laptop. Now I have an iPhone and a Windows laptop for work and I can't transfer files between the two. Is one or the other of the paralyzed operating systems somehow, or am I doing something wrong? The devices are coupled * but the file sending fails. * Well, they were. Windows still thinks that they are, but ios is now saying that my laptop "is not supported" (something has changed in the recent update to ios 11 ???) 2 app top 100 utilities in 23 countries,multi-import and multi-transfers!
