It's lonely here.

To get started, add the remote desktop that you want to connect to using this device. You can also add remote resources to work with apps and desktops your administrator has set up for you.

The technology that allows a user to work on a computer through the desktop of another terminal is what he knows as Microsoft Remote Desktop. And that is the name that receives the application designed for Windows and developed by Microsoft that puts in an easy and simple way in the hands of the user everything necessary to carry out remote connections between different computers. Work with any equipment from anywhere and control your desk. This remote desktop allows any of us to connect to another PC and its work resources we are where we are. We only need to install the two applications on the two computers to connect and perform a simple configuration so that we can access not only the content stored in the folders and files of your hard drive, but also your tools and resources work, be the applications that are. In any case this app is specially designed to work with other Microsoft ecosystem applications, such as Windows native tools or those that integrate the deimatic Office package. Main Features All remote connections are accessible from the main screen; just touch them to open them. Access and manage all work resources through RemoteApp and Desktop Connection. Connect to several remote desktops at once. Browse the applications in your remote session with touchscreen support, touch pointer, rotation and zoom. Automatically detect the quality of your connection and optimize it with RemoteFX WAN Transport features. Customize the configuration of all remote connections once or not individually. It is a tool that you can install on your Windows 10 and does not require great knowledge to properly manage it. Duplicate iOS and control Android from PC, stream games and multimedia filesReal Download purchase 1 and obtain 1 free Windows Mac Android iOS TV Let's explain how to activate the Windows 10 remote desktop, a function with which you can connect to your home's computer from another when it was. This can help from checking some file when it does not exist in front of your personal computer until you have any change that you have forgotten. In addition, we will also explain how to give someone else to your remote desktop. This option is useful especially, for example, in order to arrange the problems of some friend or family to have to be very physically in front of your computer. Only activate the remote desktop and choose how to give access permissions. But before you start, a small notice. The Windows 10 Remote Desktop is not available in the HOME version of the operating system, so you will save the license of a superior version to be able to use it, such as Windows 10 Pro. Windows 10: 9 Very A¼tile tricks And little known, the first thing you have to do is enter the Windows configuration, to which you access by pressing the icon on the cogwheel that is on the startup menu or in the notification bar. Once inside, click on the system option to access the main Windows settings. Once you enter the system configuration, you have to look at the sections that appear in the column on the left. In it, fall up almost down at all, and click on the Remote Desktop section. If you have Windows 10 Home, the only one that separates is a message telling you that you can not use it. But if you have Windows 10 Pro you can see the options. Here, the first thing is to click on the feeling of enabling remote desktop (1), which is the option that will appear above all. By doing so, a confirmation window opens in which you are asked if you really want to activate it, and have to press the Confirm (2) button to finish it. And that's it, once you're activated, you just have to connect to the team. To do this you will have to use the name that makes you easier in the section How to connect to this team that in the capture appears ambushed. To connect you have to use the remote desktop client app that you have available for almost all operating systems. Here you have the links to download the application you need: In the remote desktop window you will also find the option Advanced Settings, where it is very important to have the option active Requiring computers use authentication at the network level so that anyone can not connect. You will also have other data to allow remote connections from your computer. Permissions for only some users to access But of course, leaving the computer open so they can connect from the outside is not always as safe as possible. That's why there's another option you can use on the remote Desktop screen, and you have to click on Select users who can have remote access to this computer to access. By clicking on the option you will open a window to go by adding individually the users you want to connect to the computer. These will be added to the users of the computer administrator group. To add a new user click the Add button and type your name, and you can check if it is a correct user before adding it. This user adds to a list of which at any time you will be able to delete it in the event that you stop wanting to access your computer.
