Death, denial and acceptance In A Monster Calls, 13-year-old Conor lives in an English town with his mother, who is said to be fighting cancer. During the course of the book, Conor's mother gets sicker and sicker as repeated treatments fail, and it is implied that she dies immediately after the end of the novel. At the beginning of the book, Conor struggles to accept the very real possibility that his mother can read the analysis of Death, Dining and Acceptance. The monster who owns A Monster Calls comes from Conor with a clear purpose: to tell him three stories, after which Conor will tell him his own story. Each of the stories the monster tells has similarities to Conor's life, and for this reason he begins to expect a clear moral lesson to be learned at the end of each. But the stories that appear in Storytelling's analysis Another difficult aspect of Conor's story is that he is forced to grow much earlier than he would have done if his mother had not fallen ill. Conor's parents are divorced and his father lives in America with his new family. So, because © There's only Conor and his mother in their house, Conor 13-year-old is forced to take on many responsibilities when his mother is diagnosed with a diagnosis.
